

Faceless Synopsis

In this fast-paced courtroom drama you'll be the judge and jury deciding the fate of a defiant, and equally naïve, young woman on trial for conspiring with a terrorist group.

Engaged in an online romance with a man who turns out to be an ISIS recruiter, she agrees to marry him and convert to Islam. After posting messages online she is detected, arrested and charged.

Her prosecutor, also a practicing Muslim, is assigned to the case by a chauvinistic boss to appear neutral—but she has another agenda. Dubbing the defendant a 'Muslim Barbie' the prosecutor is hell bent on locking the younger woman away.

Filled with a host of complex, tricky issues, the show is taut and intense, sprinkled with some uneasy comedy and surprises along the way...everything you'd expect from a legal thriller.
